RSIPF farewell retiring officers

The Royal Solomon Island Police Force (RSIPF) has farewelled four officers who have retired from the police during a ceremony held at Rove Police Headquarters in Honiara on 30 December 2021.

The four officers include one fire and rescue service officer, one officer from the Guadalcanal Province Headquarters and two officers from the Rove Police Headquarters serving in Honiara.

Commissioner of the RSIPF Mr. Mostyn Mangau says, "It is a great honor for the RSIPF Executive to come out and wish and farewell our retired officers all the best for the next chapter in their lives."

"Today we are recognising a group of RSIPF officers who have served the police with long standing distinction and pride over many years throughout the course of their careers."

Commissioner Mangau says, "When you look back at the history of this organization it is built on the hard work, determination and the courage of officers like those who are retiring today. On behalf of your RSIPF colleagues here during this ceremony, your colleagues across the country, and the grateful people of Solomon Islands, we congratulate you, salute you for your service and we say thank you."

The officers have been presented with retirement certificates and plaques in commemoration of their service to the police and the people of Solomon Islands.
