Chief Liaison Officer CPLT Mr. Hao Beijing says, "It is the first time that the Chinese uniform officers come to Malaita. What we have to do is visit the community and the school, because the people's safety and the education are the most important things for the country.

Mr. Hao said the most vital obligation of police officers is to protect their people. Officers have to get the trust from the community in order to do their job better.

CPLT Officer Mr. Hao said but to build trust between the community and the police, the police cannot just show up when something goes wrong. That is why we are here. The activity we have conducted is 'a bonding moment', in which we can become familiar with each other.

Provincial Police Commander (PPC) Superintendent Leslie Kili said the CPLT and RSIPF program is an initiative that aims to foster cooperation and collaboration between the local communities. It seeks to enhance mutual understanding and trust.

PPC Kili said we recognize the importance of building a strong and positive relationship between the Police and the community. This relationship is crucial in ensuring the safety and security of our neighbourhoods, and in promoting a sense of trust and partnership between law enforcement and the public. By working together, we can create a safer and more harmonious community for all.

Superintendent Kili said through the CPLT program, we hope to promote cultural exchange and understanding between the Chinese Police and the residents of Kilusakwalo. This program will provide an opportunity for mutual learning and collaboration.
