CMT conducted free health care check for RSIPF

The 4th China Medical Team (CMT) and 10 medical professionals from the Affiliated Hospital of Guizhou Medical University in Guizhou province conducted a free medical check for the officers of the Royal Solomon Island Police Force (RSIPF) at Rove police headquarters on 22 December 2025.

CMT and medical professionals check a good number of RSIPF officers for blood pressure, blood sugar level, chronic diseases, and frequently occurring diseases.

CMT has been providing crucial, free healthcare services across the Solomon Islands since 2022 with their outreach program to the provinces.

They are working with local staff at the National Referral Hospital (NRH) in Honiara and conducting extensive outreach programs.

Team Leader (TL) of the CMT, Doctor Zhao Xueke, said the CMT offers specialized treatments like cardiology, urology, nephrology, and acupuncture, addressing significant health gaps and strengthening medical cooperation between China and the Solomon Islands.

TL doctor Zhao Xueke said this medical aid is part of China's broader health cooperation with the Solomon Islands, which includes major projects like the new comprehensive medical center handover in 2025. CMT plays a vital part in improving access to quality health care, particularly in underserved areas, and symbolizing a strong bilateral health partnership.

RSIPF Commissioner Mr. Mostyn Mangau appreciates the arrangement to conduct free medical care service for police officers. The health of our officers is very important. A healthy workforce with good work output.

Commissioner Mangau said this initiative not only enhances the well-being of the officers but also brings a sense of support to their families. Prioritizing the health of our officers is a high priority.

Mr. Mangau said this commitment to health and well-being reflects a working together, highlighting the significance of investing in the personnel health of the RSIPF officers.

He said as the RSIPF continues to implement such initiatives, it is likely to see improved morale and increased productivity among its officers.
